

Claims

[c1] A boat barrier device attachment to floating log and debris boom type devices means to deflect or prevent the progression of watercraft within a body of water comprising:

A vertical support mechanism means to provide an anchor to which a watercraft barricade means is longitudinally suspended.

A vertical support mechanism as described above means to provide a predetermined distance from a base to which a watercraft barricade means is longitudinally suspended.

A watercraft barricade means suspended between a plurality of vertical support mechanisms as described above.

A watercraft barricade means as described above wherein said barricade shall consist of such composition to withstand a predetermined level of force applied against said barricade.